Faith Formation and Christian Education

Did you know?

Our souls find rest and our lives bear fruit when we abide in Christ. Indeed, it's in our close communion with the Lord that we learn how much more rests on His shoulders than on ours. And as we learn to abide, we take our rest cues and our work cues from above. We more quickly discern our tendency to strive and make the necessary corrections before too much time passes. We pay attention to the warning signs God puts in our path because we're teachable and humble and expectant.

Quote for reflection

“Baptism, with the laying on of hands (Confirmation) as its normal completion, is the first significant event for a Christian. It declares that the beginning of a person's Christianity is not what he or she feels or experiences, but rather what God in Christ has done for them. Their feelings, experiences and virtues have meaning not in themselves, but as bearing witness to the one Body in which alone the individual can grow to their full humanity. For the life of Christians is a continual response to the fact of their baptism: they continually learn that they have died and risen with Christ, and that their life is a part of the life of the one Christian family.”
